

Anthropology and Ethnology in Poznań. We are committed to global matters and human solidarity.

Our two-year programme is taught in English and fully-funded for all accepted applicants, both international and Polish. In 2020 our teaching programme received the Certificate of Excellence and highest possible rating (A+) from the Polish Commission for Academic Accreditation.

While studying anthropology you will learn about the diversity and complexity of human ways of understanding and experiencing the world. We will provide you with the tools to analyse economic, political, ethical and environmental challenges of the contemporary era. Together, we explore the origins and consequences of interconnectedness and polarization within and across societies.

We offer you the knowledge and skills to conduct outstanding research and to communicate your ideas to others.

You will spend the first two semesters at the AMU in the vibrant city of Poznań, Poland, and the entire second year of study visiting one or two of our partner universities located in Wien, Barcelona, Maynooth, Bern, Lubljana and Lyon, according to your choice and research interests.

This model of international teaching and supervision offers our students a truly unique opportunity to develop both personally and professionally in the globalised world.
